"I'm really excited about this project. In my past work experience the "shared drive" has always been an issue with every organization I worked for as a result of the very reasons we have such a difficult time with ours. I must admit that I initially had a fair amount of skepticism simply due to the magnitude of the project. That has abated since having seen the team's solution. Having the control and organization that was outlined yesterday will make the T-drive a resource that will no doubt become invaluable to our agency and a model for others to follow. You guys have done a great job and I can't wait to see the transition!"
